Applicants argue that groups of claims must be provided. However, the restriction requirement here ^{co} instituting elections of species, are within a group. Thus, the cited rule does not apply. The requirement is deemed proper and final.

A further election of species is required:

For (a1) in claim 1, applicants must elect between fatty acid glycol esters and fatty acid glycol esters. Also, for ^{or} (92) in claim 1, applicants must elect between fatty alcohol ethers and fatty alcohol (polyglycol) ethers. As explained in the initial requirement, each mixture of compounds constitutes a unique technical feature due to the unique properties of each compound therein based on its structure.
